AMPD FINANCIAL

Money should move the way people actually live.

A digital banking platform built around real life — one banking relationship that coordinates bills, spending, saving, and wealth automatically.

AMPD Financial is a financial technology company modernizing how people hold and move money: deposit accounts, a Visa debit card, and automated money management, in a single relationship designed to plan for life automatically.

Deposit accounts	Visa debit card	Automated allocation
A full banking relationship, not a single-purpose app.	Everyday spending, connected to the same account.	Each paycheck coordinated across bills, savings, and lifestyle spending.

THE IDEA

One banking relationship, designed around real life

The problem. Traditional banking helps people hold money. It rarely helps them coordinate what happens next. Bills, discretionary spending, saving, and wealth-building are handled as disconnected decisions — made manually, separately, every cycle.

The vision. Bills. Life. Wealth. Automatically coordinated. AMPD is built so a single income stream is split across three purposes the moment it arrives — the bills that must be paid, the spending that makes life enjoyable, and the saving that builds wealth.

How it works, in general. Paycheck in — life funded automatically. The account allocates funds across its three purposes without the customer moving money by hand, and a promotional purchasing-power feature supports spending at checkout.

Built on regulated infrastructure. AMPD's engagement layer is designed to sit on established, regulated banking rails, with banking operations, compliance, risk, and security handled through institutional partners and internal teams.

Financial products that plan for a customer's life — and reward them for living it.

LEADERSHIP
